

xpanse

Storage Engineer

xpanse Pty Ltd is looking to expand its WA operation by securing the services of a full time Storage Engineer.

- Western Australian Based & Owned
- Vibrant Career Path "we invest in the development of all our staff"
- Opportunity to work with a diverse range of clients and technology

Company Background:

xpanse Pty Ltd is a specialised integrator of Data Management Solutions focusing on the supply & implementation of network storage solutions & complimentary technologies i.e. storage/server/desktop virtualisation & WAN optimisation

The suitable candidate will be working with a focused, successful team & will be empowered & have the opportunity to influence and contribute in the growth of the company.

The main responsibilities for the successful candidate are as follows:

- Work with a variety of clients to provide installation, support and management of enterprise storage products
- Play a leading role in scoping, design and implementation works around project delivery
- Provide suitable support and implementation recommendations to customers on the integration of their existing environments and NetApp storage

The ideal candidate will possess the following:

- Minimum 5 years' experience in a System Engineer role
- 2 years' experience with enterprise storage appliances, preferably NetApp FAS
- Exposure to enterprise backup products & VMware vSphere preferable
- Relevant industry certifications
- A real drive to provide outstanding customer service and work with some very exciting technology

If you possess the qualities above and are looking to recognise your full potential in an organisation that's built to help you achieve, please submit your resume with an expression of interest to recruitment@xpanse.com.au today.

